Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta

The Discourse on the Great Forty

Theme: Right view & how the noble eightfold path works
Translated by Piya Tan ©2003

1 Related suttas

1.1 There are two long suttas, both in the Majjhima Nikāya, dealing exclusively with the noble eightfold path (ariy’atthaṅgika magga). The first, the Sacca Vibhaṅga Sutta (M 141), analyses each of the eight factors using standard canonical definitions, and these definitions recur in the Mahā Sati’paṭṭhāna Sutta (D 22). The second, the Mahā Cattārisaka Sutta (M 117) deals with the path using the framework of “noble right concentration with its support and its requisites.”

A number of other suttas explore the individual factors of the path in greater detail, for example:

- Sammā Diṭṭhi Sutta M 9/1:46-55 SD 11.13 right view;
- Satipaṭṭhāna Sutta M 10/1:56-63 SD 13.3 right mindfulness;
- Dvedhā Vitakka Sutta M 19/1:114-118 SD 61.1 right thought.

1.2 The Čūḷa Vedalla Sutta (M 44) show how the 8 factors can be incorporated into the 3 “aggregates” of training (sīla, samādhi and paññā) as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>factor (āṅgo)</th>
<th>training (sīkhā)</th>
<th>aggregate (khandha)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(7) right view</td>
<td>sammā diṭṭhi</td>
<td>wisdom aggregate, pañña khandha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(8) right thought</td>
<td>sammā saṅkappa</td>
<td>(liberation-based mind)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(1) right action</td>
<td>sammā kammanta</td>
<td>moral virtue aggregate, sīla khandha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(2) right speech</td>
<td>sammā vācā</td>
<td>(the body and speech)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(3) right livelihood</td>
<td>sammā ājīva</td>
<td>concentration aggregate, samādhi khandha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(4) right effort</td>
<td>sammā vāyāma</td>
<td>(the mind)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(5) right mindfulness</td>
<td>sammā sati</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(6) right concentration</td>
<td>sammā samādhi</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Table 1.2 The noble eightfold path and the 3 trainings

---

1 M 141/3:248-252 (SD 11.11).
2 D 22,21/2:311-313 (SD 13.2).
3 See M 117/3:71-785 (SD 11.11).
4 M 44,11/1:299-305 (SD 40a.9).
5 D 1:207, 3:220; A 1:229. For detailed studies on the noble eightfold path, see Sammā,diṭṭhi S (M 9), SD 11.14; Mahā Cattārisaka S (M 117), SD 6.10; Mahā Parinibbāna Sutta (M 16), SD 9 (10d); see also Čūḷa Vedalla S (M 44,11/1:301), SD 21.7.
6 D 2:312; M 1:61, 3:251; Vbh 235.

http://dhammafarer.org
1.3 The uniqueness of the Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta is its role as a key canonical root of the post-Buddha Abhidhamma tradition. This is especially true of the Dhamma, saṅgaṇī, which helps in clarifying the teachings of the Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta. As the title, Dhamma, saṅgaṇī—“a compendium of states or phenomena”—suggests, it is concerned with listing dharmas according to various groupings (saṅgaṇī). The Dhamma, saṅgaṇī method is essentially concerned with what dharmas really are—dynamic states of mind. The Dhamma, saṅgaṇī sets out to the cycles of the various interactions of these states.

2 Summary

2.1 If life is a journey, then we, the pilgrim’s goal is the city of Nirvana. The way leading to nirvana is the noble eightfold path. The guide all along the noble path is right view, and as long as we are ahead of others, we are on the right track: this is clearly the theme of the Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta. Conversely, we are easily lost when we are (mis)guided by wrong view. The recurring theme of this Sutta is the primacy of right view with regard to “noble right concentration along with its support and requisite” (ariyān ... sammā, samādhiṃ ... sa, upanisati, sa, parikkharami) [§§2, 3] and that “in this regard, bhikshus, right view comes first” (tatra sammā. diṭṭhi, pubba. gamā) [§§4, 10, 16, 22, 28, 34 f].

2.2 This statement of the primacy of right view opens each of the first three main sections of the sutta. The 1st section [§§4-33] explains that right view comes first because it knows wrong view and right view as they really are [§4]. In the same way, with right view, we know the other factors (aṅgā) as they really are, namely, as wrong thought and as right thought [§10], as wrong speech and as right speech [§16], as wrong action and as right action [§22], as wrong livelihood and as right livelihood [§28]. The wrong factors are rooted in the unwholesome. The right factors are of two kinds: the mundane (lokiya): they have influxes, partake of merit, and result in birth-bases (acquisition of the aggregates, i.e., continued existence). The “right” or “noble” factors are supramundane (lok’uttara): they are without influxes, and are truly path-factors (magg’ aṅgā) [§§8, 14, etc], that is, they move us on to spiritual liberation.

Each of the five parts of the first section closes with the statement that when we make an effort to give up the wrong factor—of view [§9], thought [§15], speech [§21], action [§27], and livelihood [§33]—to cultivate right view—this is our right effort. Thus, these three things run along with, turn around each of the right factors, that is to say, right view, right effort, right mindfulness.

2.3 The 2nd section [§34] explains the way in which right view comes first by a causal pattern, beginning with right view, through the other seven factors and ending with right knowledge (sammā ṣāṇa) and right liberation (sammā vimutti)—“Thus, bhikshus, the learner on the path is endowed with 8 factors, the arhat with 10 factors” [§34]. In this connection, we should also study the Sekha Sutta (M 53) and the Indriya Bhāvanā Sutta (M 152).

2.4 In the 3rd section [§35], for one with the right factor, the opposing wrong factor will “wither away” (nījinnā) along with all their other unwholesome states. The various wholesome states will then reach fulfillment [§35].

2.5 The 4th and closing section [§36] lists the 20 wholesome factors [§34] and the 20 unwholesome factors [§35], totalling 40 factors [§36]. The 20 factors on the unwholesome side are the 10 wrong factors and the unwholesome states that originate from each. The 20 factors on the wholesome side are the 10

---

8 M 53/1:353-359 (SD 12.14).
9 M 152/3:298-302 (SD 17.13).
right factors and the wholesome states that originate from each [§34]. Hence the Buddha calls it the “the Dharma discourse on the great forty” (mahā, cattārīsaka dhamma, pariyāya).

3 Analysis

3.1 Rupert Gethin, in his book, The Buddhist Path to Awakening, gives an insightful analysis of this sutta (2001:216-223) from which I here echo some key points. He highlights the great significance of the sutta’s first section which distinguishes between two levels of right view [§6], thought [§12], speech [§18], action [§24] and livelihood [§30], namely, the worldly wholesome level partaking of merit, and the noble level of the supramundane path, or more technically, the right view of insight (vipassanā sammā, diṭṭhi) and the right view of the path (magga sammā, diṭṭhi) (MA 3:131).

The Majjhima Commentary here takes these two levels as distinguishing between right view that is concerned with ordinary vipassanā or “insight,” which investigates formations as impermanent, suffering and non-self [§§4, 10, 16, 22, 28], and right view that is concerned with the path, the supramundane (lok’-uttara), which arises as a consequence of insight and uproots the defilements [§§34, 35]. (MA 4:131)

3.2 This indicates that there are two stages in the arising of the noble right concentration along with its support and requisite. First, there is the turning away from the wrong factors, followed by the turning towards right view, etc, that are of the worldly but wholesome variety. Secondly, there is the attainment of right view, etc, that are noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor. It is this, says Gethin, that should be understood as “the noble right concentration with its support and equipment” (2001:218).

It is however unclear here why the sutta does not continue with right effort, right mindfulness and right concentration. Gethin provides an explanation:

These are dealt with within the body of the sutta as a whole, so perhaps one should ask why sammā-diṭṭhi is repeated here. The answer in this case would seem to be to do with the great emphasis on the priority of sammā-diṭṭhi in the sutta. (Gethin 2001:218 n112)

At this second stage, right view again leads the way, but this is now the stage of “the learner on the path” (sekho patipada) who is endowed with eight factors, and with two more he becomes an arhat (asekha or non-learner, adept) who has ten factors (ie including right knowledge and right liberation) [§34].

3.3 The Sutta shows that right view “comes first” not just in the preliminary stage of spiritual development, that is, as the preparation for the higher stage, but it comes first at all its stages.

The treatment of the factors as consecutive steps takes on the character not so much of a map showing the stages of spiritual practice, as of a working model illustrating the operation of spiritual practice at whatever stage ... Just like the Dhammasaṅgani, the Mahācattārisaka-sutta sees in the eight factors not the successive stages of the spiritual path, but rather the process that is active at all stages of the path.

(Gethin 2001:218 f)

3.4 One last important point is that the actual contrast between the eight or ten factors in their wrong aspect, on the one hand, and in their right aspect, on the other hand. This very same contrast is repeatedly made in the Magga Samyutta (S 45/5:1-62) and many other places in the Nikāyas. Amongst

http://dharmafarer.org
the 37 limbs of awakening (bodhi,pakkhiyā dhammā).\(^{12}\) “this kind of contrast is peculiar to the noble eightfold path, and must be reckoned as one of the most distinctive and characteristic aspects of its treatment in early Buddhist literature” (Gethin 2001:219). This contrast is particularly striking and well developed in the Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta—it is what actually gives the sutta its title.

3.5 My own understanding is that the Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta is about building moral virtue (adhisīla,-sikkhā) so that we go on to cultivate the mind (adhisīla,sikkhā), bringing it to a higher level of mindfulness leading to the noble path, that is, awakening (at least as a streamwinner). Notice that at the end of each of the sections on “View” [§4-9], “Thought” [§10-15], “Speech” [§16-21], “Action” [§22-27], and “livelihood” [§28-33], there is the pericope: “Thus these three things run along with (right view, etc), turn around it, that is to say: right view, right effort, right mindfulness.” In short, wholesome moral virtue should lead to right effort in proper mental cultivation, leading to liberation.

4 Observations

4.1 Right view is about wholesome growth

4.1.1 The emphasis of thought upon action is frequently discussed in the Nikāyas. In essence, it entails that right view comes first and foremost is very significant. It must be present in a wholesome action or state. Right view is not realized by adopting a view or opinion, but by acting in a certain appropriate way. It is the actions (thought, word and deed) that demonstrate the attainment of right view. Thus right view comes first.

4.1.2 Right view is mainly propositional in an instructive sense, when it is taught to another (parato,ghosa),\(^{13}\) hence has a cognitive function for the unawakened. However, for soteriological purposes (for the sake of awakening), we need to see and taste the affective dimension right view. Right view, in other words, is not so much about knowing something, as it is about bringing about a wholesome change in ourselves.

4.1.3 One way of putting this is that right view is the non-clinging or detached aspect of wisdom (paññā). According to the Abhidhamma, wrong view is always “rooted in greed” (lobha,mūla). Right view, as such, is free from attachment, so that understanding is enhanced.\(^{14}\) Right view, as such, keeps the cognitive process detached, free from extremes and also unstuck in the middle, as noted by Rupert Gethin,

In the Theravāda understanding the tendency to fix opinions can only exist prior to stream-attainment. In stream—attainment, since the wisdom of stream-attainment is characterized as sammā-diṭṭhi, a form of paññā that precisely turns away from the inclination to hold fixed opinions; once \(^{12}\) The 37 bodhi,pakkhiyā dhammā are: the 4 stations of mindfulness (sati,paṭṭhāna), 4 endeavours (padhāna), 4 paths to spiritual power (iddhi,pāda), 5 faculties (indriya), 5 powers (bala), 7 awakening-factors (bojjhanga) and the noble eightfold path (ariy’atthanika magga). See Mahā Sakuludāyī S (M 77,15-21/2:11 f), SD 6.18.

\(^{13}\) There are 2 well known ways in which doubts can arise, viz, (1) “the voice of another” (parato ghosa), ie, by listening to another, and (2) unwise attention (ayoniso manasikāra), or not seeing our sense-experiences as being impermanent, etc (Mahā Vedalla S, M 43.13/1:294 @ SD 35.1; A 2.11.7/1:87): see Yoniso Manasikāra Sampadā S (S 45.55/5:31 + SD 34.12 (2), and also of overcoming them, viz, (1) “the voice of another” (parato ghosa), ie, by listening to the true teaching (saddhamma,savana), and (2) wise attention (yoniso manasikāra), ie, relating all our sense-experiences as being impermanent (AA 2:137): see Vicikicchā, SD 12.8 (2.1.2)

\(^{14}\) Gethin 1997:216.

http://dharmafarer.org
the four truths have been directly seen, the mind has no inclination to either eternalism [n]or annihilationism, the mind has no tendency to misinterpret Buddhist theory in terms of either annihilationism or eternalism.
(Gethin 1997: 221)

4.2 Dhyana and the laity

4.2.1 Bodhi, in his discussion on “The Jhānas and the Lay Disciple” (2001: 50 & n23), points out that the Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta is “the most prominent” su̇utta foreshadowing the distinction between two types of path and dhyānas (jhāna), the mundane: the one “with influxes,15 partaking of merit,16 ripening in birth-bases17 [acquisitions of the aggregates]”18 (s’āsavā puñña, bhāgiya upadhi, vepakkā) [§§7, 13 etc] and the other “without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor” (ariyā anāsavā lokuttarā magg’āṅgā) [§§8, 14 etc]. In the Sutta, the Buddha declares,

Bhikhus, the noble right concentration with its support thus, with its requisite thus—this is called the seven factored mental oneness with these seven factors [right view, right thought, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness]. [§3]

4.2.2 Bodhi concludes that

If the latter [“without influxes ...”] is understood to be supramundane Jhāna, then we might suppose the Jhānas usually described in the training of the disciple are “connected with taints, partaking of merit, ripening in the aggregates.” The texts never describe the Jhānas in quite these terms, but some suttas imply their attainment lead only to a higher rebirth without necessarily conducing to deliverance.20

(2001:50 n23)

4.3 An Abhidhamma source

15 “With influxes,” s’āsavā = sa + āsavā. The term āsavā (lit “inflow”) comes from ā-savati “flows towards” (ie either “into” or “out” towards the observer). It has been variously translated as taints (“deadly taints,” RD), corruptions, intoxicants, biases, depravity, misery, evil (influence), or simply left untr. The Abhidhamma lists 4 āsavā: the influxes of (1) sense-desire (kām’āsavā), (2) desire for eternal existence or becoming (bhav’āsavā), (3) views (diṭṭh’āsavā), (4) ignorance (avijjāsavā) (D 16.2.4, Pm 1.442, 561, Dhs §§1096-1100, Vbh §937). These 4 are also known as “floods” (ogha) and “yokes” (yogā). The list of 3 influxes (omitting the influx of views) is prob older and is found more frequently in the Suttas (D 3:216, 33.1.10(20); M 1:55, 3:41; A 3.59, 67, 6.63). The destruction of these āsavā is equivalent to arhatthod. On “with influxes” and “ripening with birth-bases,” see §13n. See also BDict: āsava.

16 “Partaking of merit,” puñña, bhāgiya, lit, “having a share of merit” or “concerned with merit” (Gethin 2001:216).

17 “Birth-bases,” sg “birth-basis,” upadhi, lit “that on which something is laid or rests, foundation, substratum,” usu pl sense. Here, as def in DP, the term means both “worldly possessions or belongings” as well as “attachment to such possessions (forming a basis for rebirth). Comy say there are 4 types of upadhi (SA 1:31 = Sna 1:44 f): (1) the 5 cords of sense-pleasures (kāma) (MA 2:170; ItA 1:64); (2) the 5 aggregates (pañca, khandha) (MA 3:171; ItA 1:89); (3) the defilements (kilesa) (MA 3:171; SnA 1:45 f; ItA 1:64; Nm 1:103); (4) volitional activities (abhisankhāra) (ItA 1:64; Nm 1:103). Often confounded with the near-synonym upādi (trace of clinging), substrate): see Mahā Sati-paññhāna S (M 22,22/2:314), SD 13.2. See foll n & esp SD 28.11 (3.2).

18 “With influxes, ... in the form of birth-bases [acquisition of aggregates],” s’āsavā puñña, bhāgiya upadhi, vepakkā. This is mundane right view, partaking of merit, and as such does not go beyond the worldly life-cycle. Comy glosses upadhi, vepakkā as “giving results by way of the acquisition” (MA 3:141), which Tikā explains as the continuity of the 5 aggregates (MT:Be 2:306).

19 “Right thought,” sammā, sankappa, also tr as “right intention.”

20 See The layman and dhyāna, SD 8.5.

http://dharmafarer.org
4.3.1 L S Cousins, in his article on “Vitakka/Vitarka and Vicāra: Stages of samādhi in Buddhism and Yoga,” says that the Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta is an abhidhamma-style analysis of the Eightfold Path. In fact the sutta reads suspiciously as if it were itself based on the Dhammassaṅgani, but if so it is difficult to explain why no additional sources can be found for some of the terms. We must then assume that this sutta is the source of the Dhammassaṅgani [mnemonic] register [for technical terms] and presumably much of the methodology of the Dhammassaṅgani ...

(Indo-Iranian Journal 35 1992:138)

4.3.2 From all that we have surveyed, we can say that the Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta is a very late canonical sutta, especially on account of his strong Abhidhamma slant. For example, the Sutta focuses on the mind-moment (citta-kkhaṇa) of awakening rather than explaining right intention in terms of its content. The Sutta instead describes the mental activities of one who goes through any of the stages of awakening. Bodhi notes that “the definition is formulated by way of the cognitive function rather than the objective content.”

Furthermore, the Sutta refers to the three path-factors of right speech, right action and right livelihood as the mental act of restraint [§§20, 26, 32]. In fact, those in the Abhidhamma tradition and Commentaries regard this Sutta as the key text in any discussion on the supramundane path-factors. The Vibhaṅga Commentary states that a monk who speaks on the supramundane path-factors should be a “reciter of the great forty” (mahā,cattālīsaka bhaṇaka, that is, th Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta) (VbhA 320,26).

— — —

Mahā Cattārīsaka Sutta
The Discourse on the Great Forty

M 117

[71]
1 Thus have I heard.
   At one time the Blessed One was staying at Anātha,piṇḍika’s park in Jeta’s grove near Sāvatthī. Then the Blessed One addressed the monks:
   “Bhikshus!”
   “Bhante!” the monks replied.
   The Blessed One said this:

Summary

2 “Bhikshus, I will teach you the noble right concentration23 with its supports and requisites.24 Listen, bhikshus, pay close attention to it, I will speak.”

http://dharmafarer.org
“Yes, bhante!” the monks replied the Blessed One.
The Blessed One said this:
3 And what, bhikshus, is the noble right concentration with its supports and requisites, that is to say: right view, right thought [right intention], right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness?

Bhikshus, the seven-factored mental oneness is that noble right concentration with its supports and requisites.

RIGHT VIEW COMES FIRST

(1) THE FACTORS AS THEY REALLY ARE

View

4 In this regard, bhikshus, right view comes first. And how, bhikshus, does right view come first?

One understands wrong view as wrong view, and right view as right view—this is one’s right view.

5 And what, bhikshus, is wrong view?

(It is the view) that ‘there is nothing given, nothing offered, nothing sacrificed. There is no fruit or result of good or bad actions. There is no this world, no next world; there is no mother, no father, there are no beings that are spontaneously born [are reborn], there are no brahmans and recluses who, living rightly and practising rightly, having directly known and realized for themselves this world and the hereafter, proclaim them.”
And what, bhikkhus, is right view?

Bhikkhus, there are 2 kinds of right view, I say.

Bhikkhus, there is the right view with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases [acquisition of aggregates].

Bhikkhus, there is the right view that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor.

And what, bhikkhus, is the right view with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases?

It is the view that

‘There is what is given, what is offered, what is sacrificed.

There is fruit and result of good or bad actions.

There is this world, the next world.

There is mother, there is father.

There are beings reborn.

There are brahmmins and recluses who, living rightly and practising rightly, having directly known and realized for themselves this world and the hereafter, proclaim them—this, bhikkhus, is the right view with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases.

And, bhikkhus, what is the right view that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor?

It is the wisdom, the faculty of wisdom, the power of wisdom, the awakening-factor of dharma-discrimination, the right view as a path-factor, of one whose mind is noble, whose mind is without influxes, possessing the noble path, cultivating the noble path\(^{39}\)—
this, bhikshus, is the right view that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor.
\[\text{9} \quad \text{One who makes an effort to give up wrong view, to cultivate right view—this is one's right effort.} \]
One who is mindful gives up wrong view and dwells cultivating right view—this is one's right mindfulness.
Thus these three things run along with right view, turn around it, that is to say: right view, right effort, right mindfulness.\(^{41}\)

Thought

\[\text{10} \quad \text{In this regard, bhikshus, right view comes first. And how, bhikshus, does right view come first?} \]
One understands wrong thought as wrong thought, and right thought as right thought—this is one's right view.\(^{42}\)
\[\text{11} \quad \text{And what, bhikshus, is wrong thought?} \]
Thought of sensual lust, thought of ill will, thought of violence—this, bhikshus, is wrong thought.
\[\text{12} \quad \text{And what, bhikshus, is right thought?} \]
Bhikshus, there are 2 kinds of right thought, I say.
\[\text{13} \quad \text{Bhikshus, there is the right thought with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases} \]
[acquisition of aggregates].\(^{43}\)
Bhikshus, there is the right thought that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor.\(^{44}\)
And what, bhikshus, is the right thought with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases? Thought of renunciation,\(^{45}\) thought of non-ill will, thought of non-violence\(^{46}\)—

---

\(^{39}\) “Possessing the noble path,” \textit{ariya, maggassa sāmaṅgi} (also M 3:73), lit, “endowed with the noble path.” CPD says the Pali (Ee) here, \textit{ariya, maggassa sāmaṅgino}, is a wrong reading. Variant reading at M 3:74, 75, is \textit{ariya, magga, sāmaṅgino}. Cf Pug 10, 73: \textit{magga, sāmaṅgino}.

\(^{40}\) Supramundane right view here is taken as the wisdom that is a faculty, power, awakening-factor and path-factor. “This definition is formulated by way of the cognitive function rather than the objective content of right view” (M:ÑB 1327 n1103). Right view is usually def as the knowledge of the 4 noble truths (eg \textit{Sacca, vibhaṅga S}, M 141, 24/3:251). In other words, an intellectual or conceptual understanding of the noble truths is mundane right view, while the direct knowledge of the truth by realizing nirvana is supramundane right view.

\(^{41}\) Comy: The three accompany right view as co-existents (\textit{saha,jātā}) and precursors (\textit{pure,jātā}). Right effort and right mindfulness are co-existent with supramundane right view. The right view of insight is the precursor of supramundane right view. (MA 4:132)

\(^{42}\) “This statement suggests that in order to acquire right view about the nature of reality, one must first be able to distinguish between right and wrong teachings on the nature of reality” (M:ÑB 1327 n1101). Comy says that this is the right view of insight that understands wrong view as an object by examining its characteristics of impermanence, etc, and that understands right view through the function of comprehension and by clearing away confusion (MA 4:131). “It seems, though, that a more elementary discrimination of the 2 kinds of intention is the issue.” (M:ÑB 1328 n1105).

\(^{43}\) \textit{Atthi bhikkhave sammā, sāṅkappo s’āsavo puñña, bhāgiyo upadhi, vepakko}. Note here that, from the supramundane viewpoint, the mundane wholesome path-factors are regarded as “with influxes” and “ripening with birth-bases” (for future rebirths). However, the Sutta defs for the path-factors of mundane right thought, right speech, right action, and right livelihood recur in other suttas as part of the standard def of the noble eightfold path that leads to the ending of dukkha: see §§13, 19×2, 25, 31×2 (M 3:73,9, 74,3+29 & 75,20); also Intro (4.3.2) above.

\(^{44}\) \textit{Atthi bhikkhave sammā, sāṅkappo ariyo an’āsavo lok’uttaro magg’ango}. “Intention of lustfulness.” But see Gethin 2001:190, 191 f.

\(^{46}\) This is a stock def of right intention as a factor of the noble eightfold path, as at \textit{Sacca, vibhaṅga S} (M 141,25 /3:251).

---

http://dhammapafarer.org
this, bhikshus, is right thought with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases.

14 And, bhikshus, what is the right thought that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor?

Thinking, thought, intention, mental focus, mental fixity, directing of the mind, verbal formation\(^{47}\) — this, bhikshus, is the right thought that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor.

15 One who makes an effort to give up wrong thought, to cultivate right thought — this is one’s right effort.

One who is mindful gives up wrong thought and dwells cultivating right thought — this is one’s right mindfulness.

Thus these three things run along with right thought, turn around it, that is to say: right view, right effort, right mindfulness.\(^{48}\)

Speech

16 In this regard, bhikshus, right view comes first. And how, bhikshus, does right view come first?

One understands wrong speech as wrong speech, and right speech as right speech — this is one’s right view.

17 And what, bhikshus, is wrong speech?

False speech, divisive speech, harsh speech, useless talk — this, bhikshus, is wrong speech.

18 And what, bhikshus, is right speech?

Bhikshus, there are 2 kinds of right speech, I say,

19 Bhikshus, there is the right speech with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases [acquisition of aggregates].\(^{49}\)

Bhikshus, there is [74] the right speech that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor.

And what, bhikshus, is the right speech with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases?

Abstaining from false speech, abstaining from divisive speech, abstaining from harsh speech, abstaining from useless talk — this, bhikshus, is right speech with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases.

20 And what, bhikshus, is the right speech that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor?

Non-delighting in the 4 wrong types of speech, abstaining from them, refraining them, avoiding them,\(^{50}\) in one whose mind is without influxes, who has traversed the noble path, who has cultivated the path\(^{51}\) — this, bhikshus, is the right speech that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor.

---

\(^{47}\) Takko vitakko saṅkappa appanā vyappanā cetaso abhiniropanā vacī, saṅkhāro. Here the factor of intention (saṅkappa) is identified with initial application (vitakka), that is instrumental in bringing about dhyana by fixing and directing the mind upon its object. For vicāra as “verbal formation” (vacī, saṅkhāra), see Cūla Vedalla S (M 44,15/-1:301). “Application of mind” (cetaso abhiniropana) also occurs at Vbh 257 & Vism 142 in a def of vitakka.

\(^{48}\) Comy: This refers only to the factors co-existent with supramundane right intention. At the start of the practice, the 3 mundane right intentions arise separately, but at the moment of the supramundane path, a single right intention arises cutting off the threefold wrong intention. As such, the supramundane right intention may also be regarded as the intention of desirelessness, non-ill will and non-violence. The same method applies to right speech, etc. (MA 4:132)

\(^{49}\) On “with influxes” and “ripening in birth-bases,” which occurs twice here, see §13 n.

\(^{50}\) Catūhi pi vacī, duccaritehi ārati virati pativirati veramanī. On the mundane level, right speech is practised in 4 ways by abstaining from the 4 wrong types of speech. On the supramundane level, the single factor of right speech exercises the fourfold function by cutting off the tendencies towards the 4 types of wrong speech. The same applies to right action. This phrase ārati virati pativirati veramanī occurs in the 4 Nikāyas, only in this Sutta [§§20, 26, 32] = M 3:74,9+35 & 75,25, but recurs in the def of the path-factors from the Abhidhamma viewpoint (abhidhamma, bhājaniya) in Vbh 106,31+36 & 107,4; cf on right speech: Dhs 63,35 & 64,2+7; Nc 462.

http://dharmafarer.org
21 One who makes an effort to give up wrong speech, to cultivate right speech—this is one’s right effort.
   One who is mindful gives up wrong speech and dwells cultivating right speech—this is one’s right mindfulness.
   Thus these three things run along with right speech, turn around it, that is to say: right view, right effort, right mindfulness.

Action

22 In this regard, bhikshus, right view comes first. And how, bhikshus, does right view come first?
   One understands wrong action as wrong action, and right action as right action—this is one’s right view.
23 And what, bhikshus, is wrong action?
   Harming living beings, taking the not-given, sexual misconduct—this, bhikshus, is wrong action.
24 And what, bhikshus, is right action?52
   Bhikshus, there are 2 kinds of right action, I say.
25 Bhikshus, there is the right action with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases [acquisition of aggregates].
   Bhikshus, there is the right action that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor.
   And what, bhikshus, is the right action with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases?
   Abstaining from harming living beings, abstaining from taking the not-given, abstaining from sexual misconduct—this, bhikshus, is right action [75] with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases.
26 And, bhikshus, what is the right action that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor?
   Non-delighting53 in the three wrong types of action, abstaining from them, refraining from them, avoiding them, in one whose mind is without influxes, who has traversed the noble path, who has cultivated the path54—this, bhikshus, is the right action that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor.
27 One who makes an effort to give up wrong action, to cultivate right action—this is one’s right effort.
   One who is mindful gives up wrong action and dwells cultivating right action—this is one’s right mindfulness.
   Thus these three things run along with right action, turn around it, that is to say: right view, right effort, right mindfulness.

Livelihood

28 In this regard, bhikshus, right view comes first. And how, bhikshus, does right view come first?
   One understands wrong livelihood as wrong livelihood, and right livelihood as right livelihood—this is one’s right view.

51 Yā kho bhikkhave ariya, cittassa anāsava, cittassa ariya, magga, saṁāñgino ariya, maggam bhāvayato.
52 “Right action,” saṁmā, kammanṭā.
53 On the phrase “Non-delighting ... abstaining ... refraining ... avoiding ... ” (ārati virati patīvirati veramanī), see §20 n.
54 See prec n
29 And what, bhikshus, is wrong livelihood?
   Deceitful pretensions (to attainments), flattery (for gain), subtle insinuation or hinting (for gain), pressuring (for offerings), and pursuing gain with gain, he abstains from such pretensions and flattery—this, bhikshus, is wrong livelihood.
30 And what, bhikshus, is right livelihood?
   Bhikshus, there are 2 kinds of right livelihood, I say.
31 Bhikshus, there is the right livelihood with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases [acquisition of aggregates].
   Bhikshus, there is the right livelihood that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor.
31.2 And what, bhikshus, is the right livelihood with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases?
   Here, bhikshus, the noble disciples, having given up wrong livelihood, keeps to right livelihood—this, bhikshus, is right livelihood with influxes, partaking of merit, ripening in birth-bases.
32 And, bhikshus, what is the right livelihood that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor?
   Non-delighting wrong livelihood, abstaining from it, refraining from it, avoiding it—this, bhikshus, is the right livelihood that is noble, without influxes, supramundane, a path-factor.
33 One who makes an effort to give up wrong livelihood, to cultivate right livelihood—this is one’s right effort.
   One who is mindful gives up wrong livelihood and dwells cultivating right livelihood—this is one’s right mindfulness.
   Thus these three things run along with right livelihood, turn around it, that is to say: right view, right effort, right mindfulness.

INTERDEPENDENCE OF THE FACTORS

(2) THE ARISING OF THE 10 RIGHTNESSES

Dependent arising of the right factors

34 (1) In this regard, bhikshus, right view comes first. And, bhikshus, how does right view come first?
35 (2) From right view comes, bhikshus, right thought;

---

55 As in the Moralties (siīla) sections of the first Digha suttas, eg at Brahmajāla S (D 1.1.20/1:8) = Sāmañña,phala
   S (D 2.55/1:67). This is only a token mention of wrong livelihood for monastics (MA 4:134). The Vaṇi[ja S lists 5 kinds of wrong livelihood for the laity: dealing in arms, in beings, in meat, in intoxicants and in poisons (A 5.177/3:208).
   For a detailed discussion, see Vism 1.61-82/23-30.
56 “Right livelihood,” sammā,ājīva.
57 Katamo ca, bhikkhave, sammā,ājīvo sāsavo puñña, bhāgiyo upadhī, vepakko? On “with influxes” and “ripening in birth-bases,” §13 n.
58 Katamo ca, bhikkhave, sammā,ājīvo ariyo anāsavo lok’uttaro magg’aṅgo?
59 On the phrase “Non-delighting ... abstaining ... refraining ... avoiding ...” (ārati virati patiṭvirati veramaṇi), see §20 n.
60 This stock phrase occurs in connection with right speech: Dhs 63.35 & 64.2+7; Nc 462.
61 On the 10 rightnesses, see SD 10.16 (1.2.2, 1.8).
62 Comy: For one with right view of the path (magga), the right intention of the path arises. Similarly, for one with the right view of the fruit (phala), the right intention of the fruit arises. The other factors (except the last two) applies in the same way as the supramundane path. (MA 4:134)
63 Sammā,ditthissa bhikkhave sammā,sānakappa pahoti, “right view intention from (lit, ‘of’) right view.” The gen sammā,ditthissa is “genitive of material” (expressing what something is made, consists of, full of, is laden with), and functions only adverbially, here showing the origin of sammā,sānakappa. The same process applies to all the fol 9
(3) from right thought comes right speech;
(4) from right speech comes right action;
(5) from right action comes right livelihood;
(6) from right livelihood comes right effort;
(7) from right effort comes right mindfulness;
(8) from right mindfulness comes right concentration;
(9) from right concentration comes right knowledge;
(10) from right knowledge comes right liberation.

—Thus, bhikshus, the learner on the path is endowed with 8 factors, but the arhat with 10 factors.64

RIGHT VIEW COMES FIRST

(3) THE TRAINER

Destruction of the wrong factors

35 In this regard, bhikshus, right view comes first. And, bhikshus, how does right view come first?

(1) Bhikshus, for one with right view, there is the withering away of wrong view; and also the withering away of the many bad unwholesome states that arise with wrong view as condition, and the many wholesome states that arise with right view as condition are fulfilled through cultivation.

(2) Bhikshus, for one with right thought, there is the withering away of wrong thought; and also the withering away of the many bad unwholesome states that arise with wrong view as condition, and the many wholesome states that arise with right thought as condition are fulfilled through cultivation.

(3) Bhikshus, for one with right speech, there is the withering away of wrong speech; and also the withering away of the many bad unwholesome states that arise with wrong view as condition, and the many wholesome states that arise with right speech as condition are fulfilled through cultivation.

(4) Bhikshus, for one with right action, there is the withering away of wrong action; and also the withering away of the many bad unwholesome states that arise with wrong view as condition, and the many wholesome states that arise with right action as condition are fulfilled through cultivation.

(5) Bhikshus, for one with right livelihood, there is the withering away of wrong livelihood; and also the withering away of the many bad unwholesome states that arise with wrong view as condition, and the many wholesome states that arise with right livelihood as condition are fulfilled through cultivation.

(6) Bhikshus, for one with right effort, there is the withering away of wrong effort; and also the withering away of the many bad unwholesome states that arise with wrong view as condition, and the many wholesome states that arise with right effort as condition are fulfilled through cultivation.

(7) Bhikshus, for one with right mindfulness, there is the withering away of wrong mindfulness; and also the withering away of the many bad unwholesome states that arise with wrong view as condition, and the many wholesome states that arise with right mindfulness as condition are fulfilled through cultivation.

(8) Bhikshus, for one with right concentration, there is the withering away of wrong concentration; and the many wholesome states that arise with right concentration as condition are fulfilled through cultivation.

(9) Bhikshus, for one with right knowledge, there is the withering away of wrong knowledge; and also the withering away of the many bad unwholesome states that arise with wrong view as condition, and the many wholesome states that arise with right knowledge as condition are fulfilled through cultivation.

(10) Bhikshus, for one with right liberation, there is the withering away of wrong liberation; and also the withering away of the many bad unwholesome states that arise with wrong liberation as condition, and the many wholesome states that arise with right liberation as condition are fulfilled through cultivation.

THE SUMMARY

The great 40

36 Thus, bhikshus, there are 20 on the wholesome side, 20 on the unwholesome side. The Dharma discourse on the great 40 has been set in motion and cannot be stopped by any recluse or brahmin or god or Mara or Brahma or anyone in the world.

37 Bhikshus, if any recluse or brahmin should think of finding fault with this discourse on the great forty or of rejecting it, then there are ten just and good grounds for censuring him right here and now.

If that worthy one finds fault with right view, then he is one who would honour and praise those recluses and brahmans of wrong view.

If that worthy one finds fault with right thought, then he is one who would honour and praise those recluses and brahmans of wrong view.

If that worthy one finds fault with right speech, then he is one who would honour and praise those recluses and brahmans of wrong view.

If that worthy one finds fault with right action, then he is one who would honour and praise those recluses and brahmans of wrong view.

If that worthy one finds fault with right livelihood, then he is one who would honour and praise those recluses and brahmans of wrong view.

If that worthy one finds fault with right effort, then he is one who would honour and praise those recluses and brahmans of wrong view.

If that worthy one finds fault with right mindfulness, then he is one who would honour and praise those recluses and brahmans of wrong view.

If that worthy one finds fault with right concentration, then he is one who would honour and praise those recluses and brahmans of wrong view.

---

66 On the “great forty,” see Intro (1) & (2).

67 Dasa saha,hammika vādānuvāda sahammikāvādānuvādā: here referring to the 10 rightness. As such, this is not a fixed list, but refers to topics discussed. See Deva, daha S (M 101,22/2:222), on the 10 regarding joy and pain are listed; Mahā Cattarīsaka S (M 117,37/3:76 f), on the 10 rightness; Paribbājaka S (A 4.30/2:30) where a list of 4 is applies; Sikkhā S (A 5.5/3:4), where a list of 5 applies.

http://dharmafarer.org
If that worthy one finds fault with right knowledge, then he is one who would honour and praise those recluses and brahmans of wrong view.

If that worthy one finds fault with right liberation, then he is one who would honour and praise those recluses and brahmans of wrong liberation.

If any reclus or brahmin should think of finding fault with this discourse on the great forty or of rejecting it, then there are these ten just and good grounds for faulting him right here and now.

38 Bhikshus, even Vassa and Bhañña from Okkala,⁶⁸ those who held the doctrine of non-causality, of non-action, of annihilationism, would not think that this Dharma discourse on the great forty should be faulted or rejected.

What is the reason for this?

Out of the fear of blame, of anger, and of hostility.⁶⁹

This is what the Blessed One said. Satisfied, the monks rejoiced in the Blessed One’s word.

— evañi —

Bibliography

Analayo Bhikkhu (Theodor P Steffens)

Bodhi, Bhikkhu

Cousins, L S

Fuller, Paul

Gethin, Rupert

Gruber, Hans

---

⁶⁸ Okkalā vassa, bhañña (Ce Se Ukkalā ...). Comy only says that these two teachers lived in Okkala country (ie, modern Orissa) without further comment (MA 4:138). They are again mentioned in identical words in Nirutti, patha S (S 22.62/3:73), SD 68.1, and (Catukka) Paribbājaka S (A 4.30/2:31), SD 82.17. Cf Kvu 141 (quotes S 22.63), which seems to be a stock passage on those who hold extreme views. The duo are mentioned by Dhammapāla as examples of those of “wrong mental karma” (ItA 103). CPD: Okkala (sv) as referring to modern Orissa.

⁶⁹ Nindā, vyārosa, uparambham, bhaya. Be vī—vyāpāros’. Comy says that this is the fear of they blaming themselves, of the fear being beaten up by others (who are angered by their view), of the fear of being (polemically) bested by others (attano nindā, bhayena ghaṭṭana, bhayena upavāda, bhayena cāti attho, MA 4:137).

0450221 rev061018 071117 081228 091222 101221 110927 120625 131005 150226 160328 170723 181230 190812 210921 211101