1.1 Vaccha,gotta of Rāja,gaha

1.1.1 The Mahā Vaccha,gotta Sutta (M 73) records the Buddha’s teaching to brahmin Vaccha,gotta 1, a wanderer, as a result of which he decides to go forth and, in due course, becomes an arhat. Like Māluṅkya,putta, he is amongst the most intellectually inclined of the early disciples, who often question the Buddha and the other monks on the unanswered questions (avyakaṭa pañña), and on a number of occasions the Buddha simply remains silent.

1.1.2 According to the Sutta commentary, the teachings of the two discourses preceding the Mahā Vaccha,gotta Sutta (M 73)—the Te,vijja Vaccha,gotta Sutta (M 71) and the Aggi Vaccha,gotta Sutta (M 72)—have been given to Vaccha,gotta 1 (the wanderer), along with those of the Avyakaṭa Saṁyutta (S 44.7-11) and the (Dāna) Vaccha,gotta Sutta (A 3.57). The (Vaccha,gotta) Ānanda Sutta (S 44.10), records how the Buddha gives no answer to all his questions on the notion of an abiding soul. However, from these texts, we have no way of knowing their exact sequence or the time that separates them.

1.1.3 The Thera,gāthā Commentary (ThaA 1:235 f) says that Vaccha,gotta—probably Vaccha,gotta 2, of Kapila,vatthu [1.2.1]—whose personal name is unknown, comes from a rich brahmin family of the Vaccha (Skt vatsa) clan (vaccha,gotta). After becoming an expert in brahmanical learning, he fails to find the

7 A 3.57/1:160-162 (SD 22.12), which is about giving (dāna). MA:PTS 3:200 notes this as “A 5:193” which, although dealing with the “unanswered” (avyakata) topics, is addressed to the wanderer Uttiya. (Dāna) Vaccha,gotta S probably records his Vaccha,gotta’s first meeting with the Buddha. See SD 22.12 (1).

answer he was seeking, and becomes a wanderer (paribbājakā), and later turns to the Buddha’s teaching.9

1.1.4 The Venāga,pura Sutta (A 3.63) mentions a Vaccha,gotta, a brahmin of Venāga,pura—that is, Venāga,purika Vaccha,gotta or Vaccha,gotta 3—as the spokesman for the villagers there who profusely praises the Buddha.10 The Commentaries are silent regarding him, and he does not seem to appear anywhere else in the early Canon. It is possible that he is identical with our wanderer Vaccha,gotta, who is said to be a native of Rāja,gaha.11

The Anguttara Commentary explains venāga,purika as meaning “resident of Venāga,pura” (venāga.-pura,vāsī) (AA 2:291), which means that he is not a native there, and probably a visitor who has gone there to meet the Buddha, or even has followed the Buddha there, and introduces the Buddha to the villagers of Venāga,pura.

1.2 Other Vaccha,gottas

1.2.1 There is a member of the Vaccha,gotta clan, a brahmin of Kapila,vatthu—probably Vaccha,gotta 2—who is said to be a childhood “playmate in the dust” (paṁsu,kīḷika,sahāya) of the Bodhisattva. After the Bodhisattva renounces the world, he becomes an ascetic (tapassa) himself. Then, when the Buddha has arisen in the world, he joins the order, and practising in the forest, becomes an arhat. His Thera,gāthā (Tha 13) show his great love for the forest. Hence, he is known as Vana,vaccha, Vaccha of the forest (ThaA 1:60 f).

1.2.2 There is another Vana,vaccha, the son of a rich brahmin of Rāja,gaha, who is present at the Buddha’s first meeting with rajah Bimbi,sāra. He is so impressed by the whole occasion, that he decides to join the order. He too becomes an arhat and lives in the forest—hence his name, Vana,vaccha (ThaA 1:236 f). His Thera,gāthā is at Tha 112. His Thera,gāthā Commentary is at ThaA 1:235 f. We can call him Vaccha,gotta 4.

2.1 Teachings to Vaccha,gotta 1. The Mahā Vaccha,gotta Sutta is special in that it records the peak and goal of Vaccha,gotta’s spiritual quest. The discourse has two Chinese parallels, found in two existing versions of the Saṁyukta Āgama.12 The Burmese and Thai canons call this discourse the Mahā Vaccha Sutta.

From this discourse we have textual evidence that he is already very conversant with the main Buddhist teachings, so that he finally decides to join the order, practise meditation, and attain arhathood. In fact, before the events of the Mahā Vaccha,gotta, we have over 60 discourses recording Vaccha,gotta meeting the Buddha and other great disciples, discussing various doctrine points, especially philosophical topics (characteristic of him).

For the wanderer Vaccha,gotta’s spiritual progress leading up to the Mahā Vaccha,gotta Sutta, you should study the following discourses, more or less in this sequence:

(3) Vaccha,gotta Saṁyutta (S 33/3:257-262), comprising of 55 short discussions or sutta-cycles of teaching of the Buddha to the wanderer, Vaccha,gotta 1, all dealing with various reasons, basically not knowing the 5 aggregates, for one’s subscribing to any of the 10 points.

(4) (Vaccha,gotta) Moggallāna Sutta (S 44.7/4:391-395), the wanderer questions Moggallāna about the 10 points [2-12] and who answers in terms of the selflessness of the 5 aggregates.

(10) Mahā Vaccha,gotta Sutta (M 73/1:489-497), SD 27.4, the wanderer Vaccha,gotta asks about akusala and kusala; joins the order and attains arhathood.

In fact, Buddhaghosa, in commenting on the phrase “have had a conversations with” (saha,kathī)—where Vaccha,gotta remarks, “I have had conversations with master Gotama for a long time” [§3]—mentions some of these discourses.

2.2 Teaching “in brief”

2.2.1

However, Vaccha,gotta also immediately says, “It would be good if master Gotama would teach me regarding the wholesome and the unwholesome in brief.” [§3] Analayo remarks on this peculiarity, thus:

> This would seem curious, since one would not expect Vaccha,gotta to come all the way to see the Buddha and then, when asking his question, to make it right away clear that he did not want a long exposition. As a wanderer, one would expect him to have time and therefore to be able to listen to whatever the Buddha might be willing to teach him. (2007, sv M 1:489)

2.2.2

Interestingly, the Samyukta Āgama versions reports that the Buddha initially refuses to have any discussion at all, and then (on Vaccha,gotta’s characteristic insistence) indicates that he will give only a brief exposition on the wholesome and the unwholesome, as he has requested.

2.2.3

Buddhaghosa, however, gives an interesting explanation (that Analayo does not mention), that is, the Buddha knows that Vaccha,gotta, after all this time, is now ready for spiritual liberation. Apparently, the Buddha declares that he would give only a brief teaching (since Vaccha,gotta is already familiar with much theoretical Dharma), knowing that Vaccha,gotta would question him further, and this would lead to his joining the order and awakening in due course (MA 3:200).

2.2.4 Analayo, however, makes an interesting connection between Buddhaghosa and the two Saṁyukta Āgama versions of the Mahā Vacchagotta Sutta. Buddhaghosa explains that “in brief” (saṅkhittena) refers to all the 7 works of the Abhidhamma.\(^{13}\)

What makes this remark interesting is that the two Saṁyukta Āgama versions also refer to the Abhidhamma [and the Vinaya]. This reference comes as part of their description of what went on in the Buddha’s mind before he allowed Vacchagotta to put his questions. According to them, the Buddha decided to make use of the Abhidhamma when listening to Vacchagotta’s question.\(^{14}\) (2007, sv M 1:489)

2.2.5 It is possible that the translator/s had Buddhaghosa’s Majjhima Commentary (the Papañca,śūdanī) (or a related source) with them when they translated this Sutta.\(^{15}\) Or, perhaps, as Analayo suggests, there is another, even more interesting explanation:

The occurrence of this specification in the two Saṁyukta Āgama versions could however indicate a remark on the Abhidhamma, possibly as representative of teachings in brief, may have formed part of an ancient Indian commentary on this discourse, similar to the remark now found in the Pāli commentary. Such an ancient Indian commentary would have come down during the process of oral transmission together with the discourse to which it belongs, since in an oral setting one would expect both to be recited together.\(^{16}\) With the discourse and the commentary recited together, it seems quite feasible that due to the dynamics of oral transmission part of the commentary may, perhaps even only accidentally, make its way into the discourse itself. This would explain why the two Saṁyukta Āgama versions, or more probably the Indian originals on which the Saṁyukta Āgama translations were based, bring in the topic of the Abhidhamma in a way that does not seem to make much sense within the context of their presentation. 3 Sutta summary

[§§1-3] Vaccha,gotta \([1.0]\) visits the Buddha, remarking that he has had “conversations with master Gotama for a long time” and asks for a “brief teaching” on the wholesome and unwholesome.

[§§4-5] The Buddha teaches him the 10 courses of wholesome karma.

[§6] The Buddha then abruptly declares that when we destroy craving, we become arhats.

[§§7-8] Vaccha,gotta asks the Buddha whether there are monks and nuns who are arhats besides the Buddha, the Buddha answers that there are many. Vaccha,gotta questions further and the Buddha answers accordingly regarding:

4 Some key terms

4.1 Akusala and kusala

4.1.1 There are two pairs of ethical terms common in early Buddhism, that is, puñña, pāpa (“good and evil”) and kusalākusala (“wholesome and unwholesome”) [§4-5]. The former, puñña, pāpa are the older terms, used by non-Buddhists mostly in a ritual sense, that is, when the ancient (usually brahmanical) religious rituals were properly discharged and performed, it was said to be puñña (“good, merit”), and when neglected or improperly performed, as pāpa (“bad, evil, demerit”). It is in this connection that the Padhāna Sutta (Sn 3.2) records the Bodhisattva as declaring to Māra, “I see no even the slightest need for merit” (anumatto’pi puñña na attho mayhaṁ na vijjati).

The reason for the Bodhisattva’s declaration is understandable: both puñña and pāpa (or apuñña)— that is, good and evil, merit and demerit, keep us in samsara. Our store puñña bring us with good rebirths, worldly blessings, and continued existence. But they come in pairs: there is either puñña or there is pāpa. We either enjoy life or suffer when the sources of joy are absent, and it goes on like that. Indeed, the world turns on puñña and pāpa; for, it is karma. And karma is either suffering or delayed and disguised suffering: the world stands in suffering (dukkhe loko patiṭṭhito). The world turns on suffering.

4.1.2 The more common early Buddhist term of good and evil in the spiritual or liberating sense is kusalākusala, that is, wholesome and unwholesome. The word originally and generally means “skillful,” as one is skilled in some field of study, or an art, or playing a musical instrument, and so on. The Buddha gives new meanings to this pair of word. Here, kusala (“wholesome” refers to the vehicle of karma that takes a spiral path leading out of samsara, that is, in to nirvana.

The Buddha re-visualized that nature and usage of “good” and “evil”: firstly, by demythologizing puñña,pāpa, and secondly, by spiritualizing kusalākusala, that is, going beyond its sense of merely munddane skills. As Nathan Katz has proposed, “puñña could better be seen as the habituating ground of kusala... so that the practice of puñña and the practice of kusala are not separate and discrete, but continuous” (1982:166).

4.1.3 One of the simplest Buddhist models used here for the “wholesome path” is that of the 3 trainings
(ti,sikkhā), that is, the training in moral virtue (body and speech), in meditation (the mind), and in wisdom

18 Uḍḍita S (216/1.67/1.40) = Plhita S (218/1.68/1.40).
(liberating knowledge). But what is the difference between puñña and kusala here? The key difference, as already hinted above, is that while puñña is related to rituals and vows (sīla-b.,-bata), which are externalized acts, kusala involves wholesome intention (kusala,cetanā), that is, mindfulness (sati) and some level of wisdom (pañña), which entails internalized practices.

4.1.4 In short, we can here speak of 3 levels of good, as Y Karunadasa has done. What is morally good has two levels: one represented by puñña and the other by kusala. Karunadasa explains:

Both have significance in the context of the Buddhist doctrine of karma, because both operate within the sphere of karma. In this connection it must also be noted here that Nibbana is described as kammanirodha, i.e. as the cessation of karma. (1994: 27 f (digital ed p7 of 10)

4.1.5 Now this question arises: If acts of kusala prepare us on the way to nirvana, what is the position of kusala after that? It should be understood here that since nirvana transcends karma, there cannot be any acts of kusala karma for one who has attained nirvana. However, notes Karunadasa, there is evidence to suggest that at this level kusala begins to operate at a higher level, a level that transcends the operation of karma. This explains why one who has attained Nibbana is described as sammanna,kusala (endowed with kusala qualities), parama,kusala (has reached the culmination in what is kusala). He is the one who has reached perfection (paramip-patta) in noble virtue (ariya,sīla), in noble concentration (ariya, samādhi), in noble wisdom (ariya,pañña) and in noble emancipation (ariya,vimutti). (1994: 27 f; digital ed p7 of 10; Pali standardized)

4.1.6 The various kusala-compounds quoted by Karunadasa are from the Samaṇa,maṇḍika Sutta (M 78), which explains kusala and akusala in terms of the arhat, that is, how the arhat is both awakened and morally virtuous:

And, carpenter, where do these wholesome habits end without remains? Of their ending, too, it has been spoken: here, carpenter, a monk is morally virtuous (sīlavā), but he is not made of moral virtue [he does not identify with it] (sīla,maya),22 and he understands, as they really are, the freedom of mind and freedom by wisdom, where these wholesome habits end without remains. (M 78,11(3)/2:27), SD 18.9

It is in this sense, that the arhat is said to have abandoned both good and evil (puñña,pāpa,pahiṇa, Dh 39c).

4.2 CETO, VIMUTTI, PAÑÑĀ, VIMUTTI, Udbhato, BhiGa, VIMUTTI

4.2.1 The terms, “freedom of mind” (ceto,vimutti) and “freedom through wisdom” (pañña,vimutti), are mentioned by Vaccha,gotta [*§7]. The former, the freedom of mind (ceto,vimutti), refers to mental freedom that arises through the destruction of the mental hindrances), while the latter, the freedom through wisdom (pañña, vimutti) is the realization or nirvana.

4.2.2 All arhats, as such, are perfectly liberated in the same way from ignorance and suffering, but are distinguished into two types on the basis of their proficiency in concentration. One who is “freed by wisdom” or “wisdom-freed” (pañña, vimutta) arhat “may not have reached the 8 liberations (attha, vimokkha) in his own body” (that is, personally attaining it), but through seeing with wisdom, his ‘mental influxes are destroyed’ (khīṅ’āsava)” (M 70.16/1:478).

4.2.3 The arhats who can attain the 8 liberations (attha, vimokkha) are called freed both ways (ubhato, bhāga, vimutta), that is, freed from the physical body by means of the formless dhyanas, and from all defilements by the path of arhathood. These liberations include the nine successive attainments reached by the power of concentration, that is, the four dhyanas (jhāna), the four formless attainments (āruppa samāpatti), and the cessation of perception and feeling (saññā, vedayita, nirodha = nirodha, samāpatti).

4.2.4 The arhat freed both ways, as such, has knowledge of the different realms of existence. This indirect reference to the realms gives the Buddha the occasion to present a psychocosmic map. Having explained the conditions for rebirth, the Buddha goes on to show how the realms are divided into the seven stations for consciousness (viññāṇa-ś, hitiyā) and the two spheres (āyatanā). Arhats like Sāriputta and Moggallāna are “freed both ways.” Both win arhathood through wisdom and their wisdom is the same. In short,

24 Mental hindrances (nīvaraṇa), ie (1) sense-desire (kāma-c, chanda) or covetousness (abhijjhā), (2) ill will (vyāpāda), (3) sloth and torpor (thina, mithā), (4) restlessness and worry (uddhacca, kukkucca), and (5) spiritual doubt (vikicchā). They hinder mental focus or samadhi. For details, see Saṅgārava S (S 46.55/5:121-126), SD 3.12 & Mahā Assapura S (M 39,12-18/1:274 f); also Sāmaṇṭha, phala S (D 2,69-73/171-73), (Ānanda) Subha S (D 10/1:207), Satipaṭṭhāna S (M 10,36/1:60). MA 2:318-321 gives a detailed account of each of the 5 similes. See also Nyanaponika, The Five Mental Hindrances, BPS Wheel no 26, 1961: 27-34.

25 The differences btw the 2 types of freedom are mentioned in Mahā, nidāna S (D 2:70 f) and Kīṭāgiri S (M 1:477 f).

26 For a full list of the 8 liberations, see Mahā Nidāna S (D 15,35/2:70 f) + SD 5.17.35 (10). See also Saṅgiti S (D 33,3/11(11):3-262, Daśuttara S (D 34,2/11(3):3-228), Vimokkha S (A 8,66/4:306); also Saṅkhārā upapatti S (M 120,37-3/103), SD 3.4.

27 Āsava, “mental influxes, or mental fluxes” (lit “inflow, outflow”) comes from ā-savā “flows towards” (ie either “into” or “out” towards the observer). It has been variously translated as taints (“deadly taints,” RD), corruptions, intoxicants, biases, depravity, misery, evil (influence), or simply left untranslated. The Abhidhamma lists 4 āsava: the influx of (1) sense-desire (kāma-āsava), (2) desire for eternal existence or becoming (bhav-āsava), (3) views (diṭṭh-āsava), (4) ignorance (avijjā-āsava). This list of 3 influxes (omitting the influx of views) is probably older and is found more frequently in the Suttas (D 33,10(120)/3:216; M 9,68-71/1:55, 39,21/1:279; A 3,59/1:166-168, 3,67/1:197-199, 6,63/3:410-417). The destruction of these āsavas is equivalent to the attainment of arhathood. See BDict: āsava.

28 See eg Mahā, nidāna S (D 15,2/5:55-71), SD 5.17. Elsewhere these are called “the 9 abodes of beings” (nava, sattā-vāsā) (D 33,3,2/3:263, 34,2/3:288; A 9,24/4:401). Here āyatana is rendered as “sphere,” referring to a realm or level of meditation; where it refers to the senses, it is tr as “base.” Avacara (lit “down-wandering”) is tr as “realm,” but “sphere” is often used here, too. See SD 5.17 Table 2 + SD 17.8a (5.2+11.2).

29 On the 4 types of arhats, see Te, vijja S (D 13), SD 1.8 (2.1). Richard Gombrich, in ch 4 of his book How Buddhism Began (1996:96-134), discusses how he thinks ceto, vimutti and pañña, vimutti came to mean different things in the early development of Buddhist doctrine. This development was closely connected with the later scholastic view that one could gain awakening without meditation, which some scholars like Gombrich think the Buddha did not envisage (1996:96). See also T Brekke, Religious Motivation and the Origins of Buddhism, 2002: 67.
The distinguishing mark between them, then, is the “bodily suffusion” of the immaterial liberations—the four immaterial [formless] attainments and the cessation of perception and feeling. The ubhatobhāgavimutta arahat has this experience, the paññāvimutta lacks it.

(Bodhi 1984:47 f; see 48 n1)

4.3 CALM AND INSIGHT. The Aṅguttara says that the two states that partake of (or conduce to) spiritual knowledge (vijjā, bhāgyā) are, namely, calm (samatha) and insight (vipassanā) [§18]. The cultivation of calm leads to the destruction of passion, and the cultivation of insight to the destruction of ignorance (A 2.4.10/1:61). The distinction between the two is expressed by “freedom of mind” (ceto,vimutti) and “freedom by wisdom” (paññā, vimutti) respectively. “However,” notes Analayo, these two expressions are not simply equivalent in value relative to realization. While “freedom by wisdom” (paññā, vimutti) refers to the realization of Nibbāna, ‘freedom of the mind’ (ceto-vimutti), unless further specified as ‘unshakeable’ (akuppa), does not imply the same. “Freedom of the mind” can also connote temporary experiences of mental freedom, such as the attainment of the four dhyāna, or the development of the divine abodes (brahmavihāra) [eg M 1:296]. Thus this passage is not presenting two different approaches to realization but two aspects of the meditative path, one of which is not sufficient by itself to bring realization.

Mahā Vaccha,gotta Sutta
The Greater Discourse to Vaccha,gotta

M 73

1 Thus have I heard.

At one time the Blessed One was staying in the squirrels’ feeding ground in the Bamboo Grove near Rāja,gaha.

Vaccha,gotta meets the Buddha

2 Then the wanderer Vaccha,gotta approached the Blessed One, and exchanged greetings with him. When this courteous and friendly exchange was concluded, the wanderer Vaccha,gotta sat down at one side. Sitting thus as one side, the wanderer Vaccha,gotta said this to the Blessed One:

3 “I have had conversations with master Gotama for a long time.31 It would be good if master Gotama would teach me regarding the wholesome and the unwholesome in brief.”

“Vacca, I could teach you regarding the wholesome and the unwholesome in brief, and I could teach you regarding the wholesome and the unwholesome in detail, too. But, Vacca, I will teach you regarding the wholesome and the unwholesome in brief.”32

Listen well, pay attention, I will speak."

“Yes, master Gotama,” the wanderer Vaccha,gotta answered the Blessed One in assent.

The 10 courses of wholesome karma

4 The Blessed One said this:

“Greed, Vaccha, is unwholesome; non-greed is wholesome.

Hate, Vaccha, is unwholesome; non-hate is wholesome.

Delusion, Vaccha, is unwholesome; non-delusion is wholesome.

Such, Vaccha, are these 3 unwholesome states and 3 wholesome states.

5 Vaccha,33

(1) destroying life is unwholesome; abstaining from destroying life is wholesome;

(2) taking the not-given is unwholesome; abstaining from taking the not-given is wholesome;

(3) sexual misconduct is unwholesome; abstaining from sexual misconduct is wholesome;

(4) false speech is unwholesome; abstaining from false speech is wholesome;

(5) malicious talk is unwholesome; [490] abstaining from malicious talk is wholesome;

(6) harsh speech is unwholesome; abstaining from harsh speech is wholesome;

(7) idle chatter is unwholesome; abstaining from idle chatter is wholesome;

(8) covetousness is unwholesome; abstaining from covetousness is wholesome;

(9) ill will is unwholesome; abstaining from ill will is wholesome;

(10) wrong view is unwholesome; abstaining from wrong view is wholesome.34

Such, Vaccha, are these 10 unwholesome states and 10 wholesome states.

6 35Vaccha, when a monk has abandoned craving, cut them off at the root, made them like a palm-tree stump, done away with them so that they are not subject to further growth, then that monk is an arhat, with mental influxes destroyed,36 who has lived the holy life, done what has to be done, laid down the burden,37 reached his own goal, destroyed the fetters of being, freed through right knowledge.38

Monastic arhats

7 (1) ARHAT MONKS. “Other than master Gotama,39 is there any one monk, a disciple of master Gotama, who,

“Puṇṇa, there are two destinies for one with wrong view, I say: either hell or the animal kingdom!” (M

57,3b/1:388; S 42.2/4:307)

35 This new statement comes in rather abruptly, as the prec section speaks of the 10 courses of karma, and here it is about “cutting off craving at the root,” ie, the attainment of arhathood. The two Samīyukta Āgama version, however, provide a link between these two topics, indicating that to understand the 3 roots and the 10 courses of karma according to reality forms the basis for the destruction of the influxes and attaining liberation (SĀ 964 = T2.246c3; SĀ 198 = T246a29).

36 “Mental influxes destroyed,” khīṇ’aśava: see Intro (4.2).

37 “Laid down the burden,” ohita,bhāra. Comy mentions 3 kinds of burden: the aggregates (khandha); the mental defilements (kilesa); and formations (abhisaiikhāra) (MA 1:43). We are nothing but the 5 aggregates (form, feeling, perception, mental formations, consciousness); the mental defilements cause us suffering; the formations are karma that fuel our lives and rebirth.

38 The prec portion of this sentence is a stock description of the arhat. “Right (or full) knowledge” (samma-d-aññā), alt tr “right final knowledge,” ie liberating wisdom that constitutes arhathood.

having right here and now realized for himself through direct knowledge, attained and dwelled in the freedom of mind and freedom by wisdom that are influx-free with the destruction of the mental influxes?

7.2 “Not just one, Vaccha, nor 100, nor 200, nor 300, nor 400, nor 500, but far more monks, who are my disciples, who,
having right here and now realized for themselves through direct knowledge, attained and dwelled in the freedom of mind and freedom by wisdom that are influx-free with the destruction of the mental influxes.”

8 (2) ARHAT NUNS. “Other than master Gotama, other than the monks, is there any one nun, a disciple of master Gotama, who, having right here and now realized for herself through direct knowledge, attained and dwelled in the freedom of mind and freedom by wisdom that are influx-free with the destruction of the mental influxes?”

8.2 “Not just one, Vaccha, nor 100, nor 200, nor 300, nor 400, nor 500, but far more nuns, who are my disciples, who,
having right here and now realized for themselves through direct knowledge, attained and dwelled in the freedom of mind and freedom by wisdom that are influx-free with the destruction of the mental influxes.”

Laymen saints

9 (3) LAYMEN NON-RETURNERS. “Other than master Gotama, other than the monks, other than the nuns, is there any one layman, a disciple of master Gotama, a householder dressed in white, a brahmacari [a celibate], who, having exterminated the 5 lower fetters, who spontaneously arises (in the pure abodes), therein attains nirvana, 39 Tiṭṭhatu bhavaṁ gotamo. Here tiṭṭhatu (imp of tiṭṭhati, “he stands”) has a curious idiomatic usage, reflection an exception, eg “not only in the world to come, but even in this world itself, he digs up his root” (tiṭṭhatu para,loko so pana puggalo idha,lokasmiṁ yeva...attano mūlaṁ khaṇati, Dīha 3:356): see DPL: Tiṭṭhati and Tḥati (p509).

40 “Freedom of mind and freedom through wisdom,” see Intro (4.2).

41 Atthi pana te bhoto gotamassa eka,bhikkhu'pi sāvako yo āsavāṁ khayaṁ anāsavāṁ ceto, vimuttīṁ paññā, vimuttīṁ ditthe'va dhamme sayāṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharatī. Section paraphrase: “Is there any other disciples of yours who has directly attained the freedom of mind and the freedom by wisdom living now?” On this question and the next, Comy says that Vaccha,gotta thinks that arhathood is the exclusive domain of the Buddha (MA 3:201). On “mental influxes,” āsava, see (4.2) n.

42 The 10 fetters (dasa sāniyojana) are: (1) self-identity view (sakkāya,diṭṭhi), (2) spiritual doubt (vicicicchā), (3) attachment to rituals and vows (sīla-b,bara,pāramāsa), (4) sensual lust (kāma,rāga), (5) repulsion (pañīgha), (6) greed for form existence (rūpa,rāga), (7) greed for formless existence (arūpa,rāga), (8) conceit (māna), (9) restlessness (uddhacca), (10) ignorance (avijja) (S 5:61; A 5:13; Vbh 377). In some places, no 5 (kāma,rāga) is replaced by illwill (vyāpāda). The first 5 are the lower fetters (orambhāgīya), and the rest, the higher fetters (uddhambhāgīya). The abandonment of the lower 5 fetters makes one a non-returner (opapātika or anāgāmi) (see Ānāpānassati S, M 118,10), SD 7.13. This verse technically refers to the non-returner, but here is spoken of an arhat, one who has broken all 10 fetters: see Lājukikopama S (M 66,17/1:454), SD 28.11.

43 The pure abodes (suddh'avāsa) are the 5 highest heavens of the form world (rūpa,loka) inhabited only by non-returners who assume their last birth to and attain nirvana as arhats (D 3:237, M 3:103, Vbh 425, Pug 42-46). The 5 pure abodes, ie their inhabitants and respective lifespans, are: These worlds are Āviha (“Non-declining,” 1000 MK), Ātappa (“Unworried,” 2000 MK), Sudassā (“Clearly Visible,” 4000 MK), Sudassī (“Clear-visioned,” 8000 MK) and

10 (4) LAYMEN STREAMWINNERS. “Other than master Gotama, other than the monks, other than the nuns, other than the laymen, householders dressed in white, brahmacharīs [celibates], is there any one layman, a disciple of master Gotama, a householder dressed in white, who enjoy sense-pleasures,\textsuperscript{45} who is a doer of the teaching, follower of instructions, crossed beyond doubt, become free of uncertainties, gained fearless confidence, and independent of others, dwell in the teaching?"\textsuperscript{46}

10.2 “Not just one, Vaccha, nor 100, nor 200, nor 300, nor 400, nor 500, but far more laymen, who are my disciples, householders dressed in white, who enjoy sense-pleasures, who are doers of the teaching, followers of instructions, crossed beyond doubt, become free of uncertainties, gained fearless confidence, and independent of others, dwell in the teaching.”

This question is about the non-returner, which even a layman may attain. However, such laymen will remain naturally celibate because they have destroyed the fetter of sense-desire. Laywomen saints

“Other than master Gotama, other than the monks, other than the nuns, other than the laymen, householders dressed in white, brahmacharis [celibates]; other than the laywomen, householders dressed in white, brahmacharis [celibates], is there any one laywoman, a disciple of master Gotama, a householder dressed in white, who enjoy sense-pleasures, who is a doer of the teaching, follower of instructions, crossed beyond doubt, become free of uncertainties, gained fearless confidence, and independent of others, dwells in the teaching?”

Vaccha.gotta’s lion-roar: The holy life is complete

13 “Master Gotama, if master Gotama were to be the only one accomplished in this Dharma, but there were to be no accomplished monks, [492] — then, the holy life would be incomplete on that account.\footnote{Sace hi bho gotama imaṁ dhammaṁ bhavaṁ yeva gotamo ārādhako abhavissa, no ca kho bhikkhū ārādhakā abhavissaṁsu; evam idam brahma, cariyāṁ aparipūraṁ abhavissa ten’āṅgena.}

But, master Gotama, because \textit{master Gotama} is accomplished in the Dharma, and the monks, too, are accomplished—then, this holy life is thus complete on that account.

13.2 Master Gotama, if master Gotama and the monks
were to be the only ones accomplished in this Dharma, but there were to be no accomplished nuns—
then, the holy life would be incomplete on that account.
But, master Gotama, because master Gotama, the monks, and the nuns, too, are accomplished in the Dharma—then, this holy life is thus complete on that account.

13.3 Master Gotama, if master Gotama, the monks, and the nuns,
were to be the only ones accomplished in this Dharma, but there were to be no accomplished laymen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis—
then, the holy life would be incomplete on that account.
But, master Gotama, because master Gotama, the monks, the nuns, and the laymen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis, too, are accomplished in the Dharma—then, this holy life is thus complete on that account.

13.4 Master Gotama, if master Gotama, the monks, the nuns, and the laymen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis,
were to be the only ones accomplished in this Dharma, but there were to be no accomplished laymen householders, dressed in white, who enjoy sense-pleasures—
then, the holy life would be incomplete on that account.
But, master Gotama, because master Gotama, the monks, the nuns, the laymen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis, and the laymen householders dressed in white, who enjoy sense-pleasures, too, are accomplished in the Dharma—then, this holy life is thus complete on that account.

13.5 Master Gotama, if master Gotama, the monks, the nuns, the laymen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis, and the laywomen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis,
were to be the only ones accomplished in this Dharma, but there were to be no accomplished laywomen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis—
then, the holy life would be incomplete on that account.
But, master Gotama, because master Gotama, the monks, the nuns, the laymen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis, the laymen householders dressed in white who enjoy sense-pleasures, and the laywomen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis, too, are accomplished in the Dharma—then, this holy life is thus complete on that account.

13.6 Master Gotama, if master Gotama, the monks, the nuns, the laymen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis, and the laywomen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis,
were to be the only ones accomplished in this Dharma, but there were to be no accomplished laywomen householders dressed in white, who enjoy sense-pleasures—then, the holy life would be incomplete on that account.

But, master Gotama, because master Gotama,
the monks, the nuns, the laymen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis, the laymen householders dressed in white, who enjoy sense-pleasures, the laywomen householders, white-dressed brahmacharis, and the laywomen householders dressed in white who enjoy sense-pleasures, too,
are accomplished in the Dharma—then, this holy life is thus complete on that account. 48

The Ganges simile 49

14 Master Gotama, just as the river Ganges slopes towards the ocean, leads to the ocean, inclines towards the ocean, flowing into the ocean, 50 even so, this assembly of master Gotama, with its householders and renunciants, 51 slopes towards nirvana, leads to nirvana, inclines towards nirvana, touching into nirvana. 52

Vaccha,gotta joins the order

15 Excellent, master Gotama! Excellent, master Gotama! Just as if one were to place upright what had been overturned, or were to reveal what was hidden, or were to show the way to one who was lost, or were to hold up a lamp in the dark so that those with eyes could see forms, even so, in numerous ways, has the Dharma been made clear by master Gotama.

I go to master Gotama for refuge, to the Dharma, and to the community of monks. May I receive the going-forth before master Gotama; 53 may I receive the ordination.” [494]

16 “Vaccha, anyone who was previously a follower of an outside teaching and wishes to go forth in this Dharma and Vinaya, and wishes for the ordination, has to go on a probation of 4 months. 55

48 These sections, beginning from §7 up to here [§13.6], parallel, on a smaller scale, the section on the 10 kinds of disciples (sāvaka) in Pāsādika S (D 29,10-12.183), SD 40.6.

49 This imagery is perhaps the most common imagery in the Sānukta, illustrating the various aspects of the Dharma leading to nirvana, and is as such called Gaṅgā Peyyāla (the Ganges repetition). They occur at the end of the foll: Magga Samyutta (S 5:38), Satipaṭṭhāna Samyutta (S 5:190), Indriya Samyutta (S 5:241), Bala Samyutta (S 5:251), & Iddhi,pāda Samyutta (S 5:290). The Samyukta Āgama versions of the Mahā Vaccha,gotta, however, do not have this simile; instead they compare the disciple’s gradual awakening toward nirvana to how water from heavy rain flows towards the sea (SĀ 964 = T2/247a15 & SĀ2 198 = T2.446c17).

50 Seyyathā’pi, bho gotama, gaṅgā nadi samudda’ninnā samudda’ponā samudda’pabbhārā samuddaṁ āhacca tiṭṭhati. This simile is found in Mahā Vaccha,gotta S (M 73,14/1:493), Samudda,nina S 1 (S 45.97/5:39), Samudda,nina S 7 (S 45.109/5:40), Samudda,nina S 13 (S 45.121/5:41), Samudda,nina S 19 (S 45.133/5:41). The expression āhacca tiṭṭhati is fig here, but also occurs as amata,dvāram āhacca tiṭṭhati; “he stands knocking at the door of the deathless” (S 2:43, 45, 58, 80).

51 Parisā sa,gahaṭṭha,pabbajitā, cf V 1:115.

52 Evam evāyaṁ bhoto gotamassa parisā sa,gahaṭṭha,pabbajitā nibbāna, nīnā nibbāna, ponā nibbāna,pabbhārā nibbānam āhacca tiṭṭhati. See 2 prec nn. On āhacca, see SD 50.1 (2.2.1.1) ad loc.

53 Note that even up to this point, Vaccha,gotta addresses the Buddha as “master Gotama” (bho Gotama). But see §16b where he begins to address the Buddha as bhante.
At the end of the 4 months, the monks who are satisfied would give him the going-forth [novice initiation] and ordain him into the state of a monk [higher ordination].

However, I see a difference amongst individuals here.\textsuperscript{56}

16.2 “If, bhante, anyone who was previously a follower of an outside teaching and wishes to go forth in this Dharma and Vinaya, and wishes for the ordination, has to go on a probation of 4 months, I will take that probation for 4 years!

At the end of the 4 years, let the monks who are satisfied give me the going-forth [novice initiation] and ordain me into the state of a monk [higher ordination].”\textsuperscript{59}

17 Then Vaccha,gotta the wanderer, received the going forth and the ordination in the presence of the Blessed One.\textsuperscript{60}

\textbf{Vaccha,gotta learns about psychic powers}

17.2 And, the venerable Vaccha,gotta, not long after he was ordained, half a month after he was ordained, the venerable Vaccha,gotta approached the Blessed One, and saluted him. Having saluted the Blessed One, he sat down at one side. Seated thus at one side, the venerable Vaccha,gotta said this to the Blessed One:

“Bhante, whatever knowledge that a trainee should attain, I have attained. May the Blessed One teach me a higher teaching (uttari dhamma).”\textsuperscript{61}

\textsuperscript{56} This section on the ordination of outsiders, as at Kassapa Sihanāda S (D 8,24/1:176), Mahā Parinibbāna S (D 16,5.28b-29), SD 9, Kukkura, vatika S (M 57,14a/1:391), SD 23.11, Acela Kassapa S (S 12.17/2:18-22), SD 18.5, & Sabhiya S (Sn 3.6/p102).

\textsuperscript{55} This rule and procedure are found at Mv 1.38 = V 1:69; see also D 1:176; M 1:494, 512; S 2:21; Sn p101 f.

\textsuperscript{54} “Satisfied,” āraddhā, citta, ie satisfied that the probate has fulfilled all conditions as stipulated at Mv 1.38 = V 1:69 (VA 5:990; DA 2:363; MA 3:106; SA 2:37; SnA 2:436).

\textsuperscript{57} Api ca m’ettha puggala,vemattatā viditā ti. Saṅkhitta S 2 (S 48.13) explains that “the difference in individuals” (puggala,vemattatā) is due to one’s level in cultivating the 5 spiritual faculties (indriya)—faith, effort, mindfulness, concentration, wisdom—“Thus, monks, due to a difference in the faculties there is a difference in the fruits; due to a difference in the fruits, there is a difference among individuals” (S 48.13/5:200). In other words, the Buddha takes exception of him, as he does in the case of the fire-worshipping matter hair ascetics (the 3 Kassapa brothers) (V 1:34 f; J 1:82, 4:180; SnA 2:436 citing V 1:71) and Acela Kassapa (D 8.24/2:176 f); see SnA 2:436. The wanderer Sabhiya, however, has to observe the 4-month probation (Sn 3.6/p102). It is possible that these candidates are already at least streamwinners: see §16b where Vaccha,gotta declares his faith. See Kukkura, vatika S (M 57,14.1/-1:391) n, SD 23.11.

\textsuperscript{58} This is the first time the Buddha, Vaccha,gotta addresses the Buddha as bhante (“venerable sir”), ie, after the Buddha waives the 4-month probation period for wanderers, so that he is accepted into the order immediately.

\textsuperscript{59} This response is also recorded of the foll people: Acela Kassapa (Mahā Siha,nāda S, D 8.24/2:176 f); the wanderer Subhadda (Mahā,parinibbāna S, D 16.5.29/2:152 @ SD 9); the wanderer Vacchagotta (Mahā Vaccha,gotta S, M 73.16/1:494); and Māgandiya (Māgandiya S, M 75.27/1:512). However, Subhadda’s case is unique in that he wins arhathood on the same night. Considering the faith shown in this manner, it is possible that these candidates are already at least streamwinners, which would also explain why the Buddha “sees a difference amongst individuals here.” [§16a]. See prec n.

\textsuperscript{60} Alattha kho vaccha,gotta paribbājako bhagavato santike pabbajjam alattha upasampadāni. The preposition santike (“in the presence of”) here, does not presuppose that the Buddha himself ordains Vaccha,gotta. From what is already stated regarding probation for candidates who are erstwhile “outside the teaching,” it is more likely that he is ordained by a chapter of monks.

\textsuperscript{61} Comy qu Dhs: “what is the state of trainees” (katame ca dhammā sekkhā) (Dhs 1016, 1400), and says that non-return is attained. He asks the Buddha about the practice of insight for attaining the path of arhathood. The Buddha however sees that he has the supporting conditions for the six direct knowledges. So he is taught calmness.
18 “In that case, Vaccha, cultivate two higher teachings: calm and insight [samatha and vipassana]. Vaccha, when these two teachings—calm and insight—are cultivated further, they bring about a penetration of the many elements (dhātu).

19 (1) THE VARIOUS PSYCHIC POWER. Vaccha, even as far as you might wish, ‘May I wield the various psychic powers, thus:’ Having been one, may I become many; having been many, may I become one. May I appear, may I disappear. May I go unhindered through walls, through ramparts, through mountains as if through space. May I dive in and out of the earth as if it were water. May I walk on water without sinking as if it were earth. May I, sitting cross-legged, fly through the air like a winged bird. May I, with my hand, touch and stroke even the sun and the moon, so mighty and powerful. May I have power over my body up to as far as the Brahmā world.’—You will gain the ability to witness [to personally experience] any aspect therein, whenever the conditions are right.

20 (2) THE DIVINE EAR (CLAIRAUDIENCE). Vaccha, even as far as you might wish, ‘May I, by means of the divine-ear element, purified and surpassing the human, hear both kinds of sounds: divine and human, whether near or far.’—You will gain the ability to witness [to personally experience] any aspect therein, whenever the conditions are right.

21 (3) MIND-READING. Vaccha, even as far as you might wish, ‘May I, having encompassed them with my own mind, understand the minds of other beings, of other individuals.

May I know a mind with lust as a mind with lust, and a mind without lust as a mind without lust. May I know a mind with aversion as a mind with aversion, and a mind without lust as a mind without lust.

(samatha) for producing the five mundane direct knowledge and insight (vipassanā) for attaining arhathood. (MA 3:201 f)

62 Samatho ca vipassanā ca: see Intro (4.3).
63 Iddhi,vidhā. Cf Ākāṅkheyya S (M 6), which mentions the 6 direct knowledges (abhiññā) (M 6.14-19/1:34-36), SD 59.1; See M:ÑB 37. Cf Kevaḍṭha S (D 11) where the Buddha disapproves of exhibiting such powers (D 11.4-5/-1:213 f), SD 1.7. For details on the 6 direct knowledges, see Vism 12-13.
64 The whole passage is in the 3rd person, but is here rendered as 1st person, in keeping with this opening line.
65 Yassa yassa ca abhiññā,sačchi,karaniyaya dhammāsā cittam abhiññāmeti abhiññā,sačchikiriyāya, tatra tatra eva sakkhī,bhabbataṁ pāpunātī satī satī āyatane. Qu at DA 125. The latter phrase—tatra tatra…satī satī āyatane—is a common stock phrase that introduces the attainment of the direct knowledges (abhiññā): Mahā Vaccha,gotta S (M 73.19/1:494), SD 27.4; Kāya,gata,sati S (M 119.29 f/3:96 f), SD 12.21; Paṁsu,dhovaka S (A 3.-100a.4/1:255, SD 19.11a; Upakkilesa S (A 5.23/3:16-19); Pañcāṅgika S (A 5.28.11/3:27); Dutiya Iddhi,pāda S (A 5.68/3:82 f); Sakkhi,bhabba S (A 6.71/3:426 f); Gāvi Upamā S (A 9.35/4:421 f). It refers to the preliminary conditions (āyatana) for the 6 direct knowledges (abhiññā) which follow later. The preliminary condition for the first 5 direct knowledges (the mundane ones) is the 4th dhyana, and insight, for the 6th direct knowledge (the destruction of the influxes, which is supramundane), ie arhathood. See SD 12.21 (6).

68 The following section (italicized) is a list of mental states is apparently taken from Satipaṭṭhāna Ss (D 22.12/-2:299 = M 10.34/1:59), where it fits more appropriately. (Walshe, D:W 546 n131). On another def of mind-reading (4 kinds), see Sampasādaniya S (D 28.6/3:103 f), SD 14.10.

May I know a contracted mind [due to sloth and torpor] as a contracted mind, and a distracted mind [due to restlessness and worry] as a distracted mind.

You will gain the ability to witness [to personally experience] any aspect therein, whenever the conditions are right.

22 (4) THE KNOWLEDGE OF THE RECOLLECTION OF PAST LIVES. Vaccha, even as far as you might wish,
‘May I recollect my manifold past existence, that is to say, 1 birth, 2 births, 3 births, 4 births, 5 births, 10 births, 20 births, 30 births, 40 births, 50 births, 100 births, 1000 births, 100,000 births, many aeons of cosmic contraction, many aeons of cosmic expansion, many aeons of cosmic contraction and expansion, thus:

“There I had such a name, belonged to such a clan, had such an appearance. Such was my food, such my experience of joy and pain, such the end of my life. Passing away from that state, I re-arose there. There too I had such a name, belonged to such a clan, had such an appearance. Such was my food, such my experience of joy and pain, such my life-span. Passing away from that state, I re-arose here.”

You will gain the ability to witness [to personally experience] any aspect therein, whenever the conditions are right. [496]

23 (5) THE KNOWLEDGE OF DEATH AND BIRTH (THE DIVINE EYE). Vaccha, even as far as you might wish,
‘May I see—by means of the divine eye [clairvoyance], purified and surpassing the human—beings passing away and re-arising, and he knows how they are inferior and superior, beautiful and ugly, fortunate and unfortunate, in the heavens, in the suffering states, faring in accordance to their karma:

69 Unsurpassable (anuttaram) mind, probably synonymous with “developed” mind. See D:W 592 n667.

70 Pubbe,nivāsanānussati,ā, lit “the knowledge of the recollection of past dwellings [existences].” The remainder of this is expanded into 4 sections in Brahma,jāla S (D 1.1.31-34/1:13-16 @ SD 25.3(76.3)) and 3 sections in Sampasādaniya S (D 27.15-17/3:107-112 @ SD 10.12). In both cases, each explains how the eternalist view arose. This knowledge and the four three (ie 4-6) constitutes “the 3 knowledges” (te,vijja) of the Buddha and the arhats (D 3:220, 275; A 5:211), and is a shorthand for “the 6 knowledges” (cha-ṭābhiñña) listed here and elsewhere. This knowledge is detailed at Vism 13.13-71/411-423.

71 Cutūpapātā ṇāna, “the knowledge of the falling away and rebirth (of beings),” or “knowledge of rebirth according to karma” (vathō,kammūpaga ṇāna), or “the divine eye” (dibba,cakkhu), ie clairvoyance, not to be confused with the Dharma-eye (dhamma,cakkhu) (see §104 n). On the relationship of this knowledge to the 62 grounds for wrong views, see Brahma,jāla S (D 1), SD 25.3 (76.3).

72 Dibba,cakkhu, clairvoyance, not to be confused with the Dharma-eye (dhamma,cakkhu) (see n in §104). On the relationship of this knowledge to the 62 grounds for wrong views, see Brahma,jāla S (D 1), SD 25.3 (76.3). See prec n.

“These beings—who were endowed with evil conduct of body, speech, and mind, who reviled the noble ones, held wrong views and undertook actions under the influence of wrong views—after death, with the body’s breaking up, have re-arisen in a plane of misery, a bad destination, a lower realm, in hell.

But these beings—who were endowed with good conduct of body, speech, and mind, who did not revile the noble ones, who held right views and undertook actions under the influence of right views—after death, with the body’s breaking up, have reappeared in a happy destination, in heaven.”

You will gain the ability to witness [to personally experience] any aspect therein, whenever the conditions are right.

24 (6) The knowledge of the destruction of mental influxes. Vaccha, even as far as you might wish, ‘May I, having right here and now realized for myself through direct knowledge, upon attaining the freedom of mind and freedom by wisdom that are influx-free with the destruction of the mental influxes, dwell therein.”

You will gain the ability to witness [to personally experience] any aspect therein, whenever the conditions are right.

Vaccha,gotta becomes an arhat

25 Then, the venerable Vaccha,gotta, being satisfied, rejoiced in the Blessed One’s word, rose from his seat, saluted the Blessed One, and going rightwise, departed.

26 The full arhathood pericope

Then, the venerable Vaccha,gotta, dwelling alone, aloof, diligent, exertive, and resolute, in no long time at all, right here and now, having realized it for himself through direct knowledge, attained and dwelled in the supreme goal of the holy life, for the sake of which sons of family rightly go forth from the household life into homelessness.

26.2 The arhat’s review knowledge. He directly knew:

“Birth is destroyed, the holy life has been lived, done what is to be done, there is no more of this state of being.”

26.3 And the venerable Vaccha,gotta became one of the arhats.

Vaccha,gotta informs the Buddha

27.1 Now, at that time, some monks were going to see the Blessed One. The venerable Vaccha,gotta saw them coming from the distance. Seeing the monks, he approached them, and said this to them:

73 Āsava-k, khaya, ṇāha, ie the knowledge of the destruction of: (1) sense-desire (kām’āsava), (2) (desire for eternal) existence or becoming (bhav’āsava), (3) wrong views (diṭṭh’āsava), (4) ignorance (avijjāsava), which defines the state of arhathood: see Intro (4.2) sv khīṇ’āsava.

74 For details, see Poṭṭhapāda S (D 9,56.2+56.3), SD 7.14.

75 On this para and the next (the attainment of arhathood), see Poṭṭhapāda S (D 9,56.2/1:203) n, SD 7.14.

76 See Vaccha,gotta Thera,gāthā: Tevijjo’ham mahā,jhāyī ceto,samatha,kovido | sadattho me anuppatto kataṁ buddhassa sāsanaṁ, “One with the 3 knowledges am I, a great meditator, skilled in stilling the mind, | I have won the true goal, the Buddha’s teaching has been done.” (Tha 112)
“Where are the venerables going?”
“We are going to see the Blessed One, avuso.”
“Then say, ‘The Blessed One has been served [worshipped] by me! The Sugata [well-farer] has been served [worshipped] by me!’”
“Yes, avuso,” the monks replied the venerable Vaccha,gotta in assent.

27.2 Then the monks approached the Blessed One, saluted him, and then sat down at one side. Seated thus at one side, the monks said this to the Blessed One:

‘The Blessed One has been served [worshipped] by me! The Sugata [well-farer] has been served [worshipped] by me!’

28 “Before this, bhikshus, having read his mind with my own, I already knew of the monk Vaccha,-gotta, thus:

‘The monk Vaccha,gotta is one who has attained the 3 knowledges, one of great psychic power, of great might.’

28.2 And the devas, too, told me this,

‘The monk Vaccha,gotta is one who has attained the 3 knowledges, one of great psychic power, of great might.’

The Blessed One said this. Satisfied, the monks rejoiced in the Blessed One’s word.

77 Paricīṇṇo me bhagavā, paricīṇṇo me sugato. “Has been served,” paricīṇṇa, here is an arhat’s lingo or intended language, with which Vaccha,gotta informs the Buddha of his arhathood. The reporting monks probably do not understand the statement’s real meaning; so, the Buddha explains its significance to them. Cf M 144,7/3:264 = S 35.87/4:57; Tha 178, 604, 687, 792, 891.

78 The 3 knowledges (te,vijjā) are: (1) retrocognition (pubbe,nivāsānussati,ñāṇa, ie, the recollection of past lives; (2) the divine eye (dība,cakkhu) or clairvoyance; & (3) the knowledge of the destruction of the mental influxes (āsava-k, khaya,ñāṇa), that ends rebirth (Cv 7.1.4/V 2:183 [Bhaddiya]; D 33,1.10(58)/3:220, 34,1.4(10)/3:275; M 4,27-33/1:22, 27,23-25/1:182 f, 36,36-44/1:2478-249, 39,19-21/1:278-280, 51,24-26/1:347 f, 65,18-21/1:441 f, 76,47-50/1:522, 79,41-44/2:38 f, 101,42-45/2:226 f; S 6.5/1:146* (v582), 8.7/1:192* (v736), 8.9/1:194* (v749); A 3-59.2/4-1:166 f; Sn 656; cf (on the 3rd knowledge, āsava-k, khaya,ñāṇa) M 9,70/1:55, 112,20/3:36. These 3 are superknowledges (superknowledges), but only the 3rd is a “direct knowledge” (aṇṇā), as it leads to arhathood. The 3-knowledge arhat (te,vijja arahata) is one who, with samatha as basis, have attained 4 or more dhyanas. The te,vijjā here is the antithesis of the brahminical ti,veda (A 1:163; Sn 594; SnA 463). See PED, sv vijjā.
